Note: The Pali Text Society's original edition of the Vinaya Piṭaka was published out of order, starting with the Mahāvagga and Cūlavagga before going back to the beginning to pick up the standard sequence. The confusion is further compounded by the traditional practices of calling the same text by different names (e.g., the Mahāvibhaṅga is also known as the Bhikkhuvibhaṅga); combining two texts under a single name (e.g., Mahāvibhaṅga + Bhikkhunīvibhaṅga = Suttavibhaṅga; Mahāvagga + Cūlavagga = Khandhaka); and dividing one text rather arbitrarily into two (e.g., the Suttavibhaṅga is often split in half after its fourth section to create two sub-volumes named after their initial chapter titles—i.e., Pārājika and Pācittiya—with the latter encompassing the remainder of the Mahāvibhaṅga plus the entire Bhikkhunīvibhaṅga).
